

Banking on Presley

Ann Burnett of Seminole, Fla., sits on her stacks of nearly 500 copies of the Memphis Press-Scimitar of the day after Elvis Presley's death. The woman, who has sold 20 of the papers for $25 dollars each, purchased the 500 papers for 50 cents each at a Memphis, Tenn., flea market. She hopes to be able to pay off her house with the money from the sales (AP).

N.

L.A.
BELF
bles in have be long year
Catholic
ered, old
"This is y

"I thin
olic is mi
now with
and crea
for his ch
runs the c

The pr
garded ch
with th
communi
areas of
ridden ca
'Peace W

"Basic
commun
with jus
tinued.
stand w
majority counties
give Cath
portunity

"It is
rights tha
publican
tion."

A sam
opinion, priests to

we mark the 95th anniversary of Day in the United States, emin Connecticut is at its high-by three years. Per-residents is es-
month

programs are underway for bringing our veterans, especially Vietnam-era vets, into the mainstream through employment.

In so many or